

Skiing disaster

Steven is twelve years old with straight blond hair and brown eyes. He is an only child.

Steven, his Mam and his Dad were going on a vacation to Banffpark, a theme park in Canada. The three of them went to the airport and got in the plane. When they got off the plane they got a taxi to the hotel and checked in. Then they went to Banffpark. Steven went on a lot of rides and then Steven saw the mountain range. He asked "could they go there and try the skiing". They got on a cable cart and got to the top of the mountain. After the family got their gear on the instructor demonstrated how to use the skis and poles. Steven's Mam and Dad went down the mountain first. Then it was Steven's turn. As Steven was going down a storm brewed over the park and the thunder caused an avalanche. Steven tried to get down the mountain but the avalanche was too quick. Steven was knocked off his skis straight away.

The avalanche caused destruction down at the theme park. Luckily everybody got out.

Steven was in the snow and had broken his leg. The owner of the park told Steven's parents that he had sent out a search party to look for Steven. After about one hour later they had found Steven but they did not know how to get him down off the mountain.

They called the ambulance and the secretary said they would send a helicopter up the mountain and get Steven. The helicopter brought Steven to the hospital. The doctor said "that it was so badly damaged that his leg would have to be amputated but luckily in Canada they make robotic legs and were able to donate him one". It took Steven along time to recover. Then when he was aloud to go home Steven thanked the doctors and flew home on an aeroplane. At the airport back home all of his family and friends were there to welcome him home. Steven lived along and happy life and wrote a book about that day.
